

***The Sanctity of the Womb.....or is that Non Sanctity?*****

When life begins at conception and mothers learn through medical testing that they are expecting their child the fetus is protected inside the mother by the womb. The Roe v. Wade decision in 1973 removed all those protections thru the third trimester in that a doctor if a mother wanted for many reasons to terminate her pregnancy, she will be allowed to enact that horrific procedure. This permissible procedure has made the sanctity of the womb, which many would have believed the safest place for a baby to be, became the most unsafe place for a baby to be by virtue of an abortionist invading the womb with a tool and performing dilation and extraction of the baby body parts with a piece by piece destruction method. This is cruel and inhumane as there is no question as to the viability in regards to pain and anguish to not only the child but the mother as well.

There is no medical doubt that the fetus feels and absorbs much pain as those who have worked in Planned Parenthood facilities will tell you that the pictures of abortions show the baby trying to pull away in the mother's womb while the suction machine is tearing it apart limb from limb.

Legislation has been introduced labeled the pain capable abortion ban as the reason being that after 20 weeks gestation that the fetus feels this horrific pain and this procedure for that very reason should be outlawed. This has not yet passed the state house or federal level but many feel it should be allowed to do so and become the law of the land.

The United States of America has laws on the books that make it a felony to treat living animals which are treated cruelly, to have their abusers put on trial and before a judge to be dealt with legally for animal and pet abuses. This is of course the right thing to do as for the safety of all animals and living things. The fact of the matter is that it is safer here in society for a living animal than it is for a fetus inside the mother's womb due to the dichotomy created by Roe and Doe V. Bolton, which is the companion legislation to Roe.

This country has much to be proud of but one of our generational scourges is that a mom who is with child has the right to allow a stranger for a fee paid by either themselves or through Medicaid funding to terminate her pregnancy and make the sanctity of the womb unsafe as for immoral acts of vicious Doctors profiteering by way of killing babies. The emotional scars left on the mother are immeasurable and many will tell you later on that they regret their abortions.

We can only hope as a society that the precious gift we call life will once again given as much priority in the Womb as it is outside the womb. The sanctity of life begins in the safest place that it can and that is the mother's womb but if laws allowing it to be invaded are kept on the books then the non-sanctity of this safe haven will continue to eliminate many future populations and those who would have been great contributors.

The United States is only one of seven countries worldwide that have legalized abortion and this distinction we bear is an embarrassment to our health system, our faith and our constitution which guarantees the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.
